WILLEMSTAD – Diamars atardi Minister di Husticia Elmer Wilsoe a participá na medionan di prensa local cu e ta keda para'riba su decision pa manda un carta pa Gobièrno Mericano den cual el a interveni na fabor dje rifero y sospechoso di actonan fraudulento cu belasting y wega di number Robbie dos Santos.

Den e carta e Minister a pidi pa kita beslag riba saldonan miyonario dje rifero, kende ta sospechoso principal den e investigashon tocante labamentu di placa.

Reportadamente Robbie dos Santos ta spònsor principal di partido MFK di Promé Minister Gerrit Schotte loke ta haci e asunto mas cuestionabel ainda.

Básicamente Minister Wilsoe a splica cu e tin tur autoridad pa a kita competencia di Procurador General pa atendé tipo di casonan asina cu Ministerio di Husticia cu cualkier pais stranhero y el a asumi e competencia aki.

Den mesun rosea el a anunciá cu tin un kiebro di confiansa entre su persona y Procurador General Dick Piar.

Wilsoe a insisti cu como Minister di Husticia e ta calificá pa manda un carta, pasobra esey ta su maneho, asina Wilsoe a enfatisá.

Ministerio Publico a lansa programa di Husticia Rápido

WILLEMSTAD - Ayera Ministerio Publico a lansa e programa HURA cu ta abreviashon di Husticia Rápido.

E ta un método liher y eficiente pa atende casonan relativamente simpel. Den cada caso OM ta tene cuenta cu e contexto huridico, pero tambe esun social, p'asina busca un castigo (alternativo) cu ta pas mas cu e sospechoso.

Meta di HuRa ta pa atende casonan chikito y simpel di un manera mas rápido posibel. HuRa lo trata net e tipo di casonan cu tin e tendencia di wordo poné riba un stapel y despues ta lubida riba nan.

Pa evita cu después tipo di casonan aki por wordo cancelá pa motibo cu ta delito bieu, OM a introduci HuRa.

Pues HuRa ta bay trata casonan simpel caminda sea e sospechoso ta detene ainda of ya el a wordo pone den libertad dor di Hues Comisario.

Tambe lo trata casonan caminda e sospechoso no a wordo poni "den verzekering", esta e 6-uurszaken.

Den e concepto HuRa, Ministerio Público lo tin un contacto directo y mas personal cu e sospechoso. Di e manera aki lo por busca un solucion mas directo p'e caso, pero tambe pa e sospechoso.

Mariano Rivera: 'I'm OK'

NEW YORK -- Mariano Rivera said Wednesday that when his agent referred to "complications" during an exam of his injured knee, he was speaking in regards to a blood clot in Rivera's right calf.

"I'm OK," Rivera said.

The 42-year-old Rivera tore the anterior cruciate ligament and damaged the meniscus in his right knee last Thursday at Kansas City when he stumbled and fell while shagging a fly ball during batting practice. He likely will miss the rest of the season.

Rivera also revealed Wednesday that his plan all along was to come back and play next year. Rivera said during spring training he was "1,000 percent" sure what he would decide after this year, leaving most to believe that he would retire.

"I was leaning toward coming back," Rivera said. "I was feeling strong in that. It is hard. The traveling and the games. The traveling -- I hate it. The games -- I love it."

Even with his knee injury expected to keep him out this season, he reiterated he will return in 2013.

Rivera, who will make $17 million this season, will have to agree to a new contract.

On Monday, the New York Post quoted Rivera's agent, Fernando Cuza, saying Rivera had "complications" when he went to see New York-based doctors about his injured knee.

Rivera said the blood clot wasn't discovered until he met with doctors on Monday. Team physician Dr. Christopher Ahmad at New York Presbyterian Hospital, Dr. Russell Warren, a knee specialist at the Hospital for Special Surgery and Mets team doctor, Dr. David Altchek, all examined Rivera's knee.

Rivera mentioned to the doctors he had soreness in his calf. They discovered the clot. "I was scared," Rivera said.

Rivera stayed at the hospital on Monday night and immediately went on blood thinners. The blood clot is expected to completely heal. Rivera did not know if the clot was a result of the accident in Kansas City or if it happened at some other point."Maybe it was a blessing," Rivera said. "I always say it like that. I always say that things happen for a good reason. I was more concerned with the blood clot than the knee. I was like, 'What else can happen?' To me, it is a blessing. I take it the way it is. I didn't ask why it happened. I didn't ask how it happened. I just [say,] 'How we deal with it?' "

Rivera will not have surgery for a few weeks so he can allow his knee to strengthen.

"I will be back as soon as I can," Rivera said, not ruling out a return this season.

Sitting on his couch in his Westchester home, Rivera watched David Robertson load the bases before picking up the first post-injury Yankee save.

"I sweat," Rivera said. "I sweat. I was saying, 'Throw the ball like this. Throw the ball like that.' "

Rivera said he is going to come back unless there are signs that it is his time to go. "I want do that, but I don't know what the Lord has for me," Rivera said. Yankees manager Joe Girardi grew emotional after Tuesday's win. Girardi talked about the notecard he keeps with his reliever listed from his closer on top to his long man on bottom. This week, he moved Robertson to the top of the list and dropped Rivera from the card.

"I look forward to see him back in a Yankee uniform," manager Joe Girardi said.

When or if Rivera does come back, one thing that won't change will be shagging fly balls during batting practice, even though that is how he hurt himself.

"No doubt," Rivera said. "Believe it. No doubt. I don't know if the Yankees will let me do it, but they are going to have to tie me down."

Josh Hamilton won't be distracted

BALTIMORE -- Texas Rangers slugger Josh Hamilton vowed Wednesday not to let any contract talk distract him from having a successful season. Less than 24 hours after becoming the 16th player to hit four home runs in one game in big league history, Hamilton said his main concern is staying healthy and helping the Rangers win a World Series. "I'm not going to let it be a distraction for me," Hamilton said. "I'm going to keep trying to play good and put up good numbers and do what I can. I think they kind of want to see things play out and see me be healthy and play and all that."

The Rangers and Hamilton's agent have an open dialogue and are talking during the season as they try to see if there's a contract that works for both sides, prior to Hamilton becoming a free agent at the end of 2012. "There's nothing new to say about the situation," Rangers general manager Jon Daniels said Wednesday.

"We want Josh to remain a Ranger for a long time, and he's expressed that the feeling is mutual. Beyond that, we are not going to discuss any potential negotiations, with Josh or other players."

So far, Hamilton is putting up monster numbers. Going into Wednesday, he was leading the league in batting average (.406), home runs (14) and RBIs (36). He said the chances were "very, very, very, very slim" that he'd finish the season on top of those Triple Crown categories.

"Why worry about something that likely won't happen anyway?" Hamilton said. "Just have fun, go out and play and help me team win. That's all I want to do. I want to win a World Series."

Hamilton said he's been "completely able to block" any talk of negotiations out of his mind and just play the game. He said he isn't worried about where he might be in 2013. "I pray all the time that God has us where he wants us to be at the end of the season," Hamilton said. "If that's with Texas, it's with Texas. If not, I'll be happy to go wherever he wants us to go.

"It's easy for me to focus. I'm under contract with the Texas Rangers to play baseball this season, so what do I have to do on a daily basis to come in and play the best I possibly can that night? Thinking about all that stuff and how to do the best I can that night doesn't allow me to think about what's going on next year." Hamilton went back to the hotel after Tuesday's game, ordered pizza and hung out with his father-in-law who is in town and Shayne Kelley, who is a Rangers staff member and part of Hamilton's support system. He said he prayed and had a chance to let the historic evening sink in for him. He talked with his wife, Katie, who said she was glad that she could yell as loud as she wanted inside the house and not bother anyone at the ballpark. "It means a lot. It's special to me," Hamilton said. "But I can't live there. I take the confidence with me of having a good game like I would if I went 4 for 5 with four singles. You don't take the moment to the next day. It's a moment. Ninety-nine percent of the time, it isn't going to happen. One hundred percent of the time in this case. Don't live there."

Hamilton said he knew he was seeing the ball and getting the good part of the bat on it, though he wasn't sure his first or third home runs were going to leave the park. "Things kind of slowed down for me and you just keep the barrel of the bat on the ball and if it goes, it goes," Hamilton said. "Very rarely do you try to hit a home run and hit one. (The) majority of the time it's a mistake thrown by a pitcher or you hit a line drive and you get the right angle on it to hit it out."

Hamilton said the ball from his fourth homer on Tuesday, given to him by reliever Mike Adams who made sure to secure it after it bounced near the bullpens, is safe in his luggage. He said it's been authenticated.

"It's probably going to end up either in a closet or rolling down the slide in the backyard if the girls get it," Hamilton said.

Hamilton said he spoke to Darren O'Day, his former Ranger teammate who threw the pitch that he hit for his fourth homer.

"I said maybe it was a higher power thing because he was set up way off the plate and he threw it right down the middle," Hamilton said. "I appreciate it."

He also appreciated that the Orioles pitched to him and decided to attack him. "I think as a competitor for the other team or a pitcher, a new guy coming in, you think 'I want to take my shot, I want to go after him and see what I can do with him.' I give them a lot of credit for that. Some teams might have thrown the ball out of the zone and try to get me to chase or something like that. They came after me."

Hamilton said he wouldn't alter his approach before he received an unexpected rest when rain postponed Wednesday night's game between the Rangers and Orioles.

Moments before the announcement, several Texas players ran from the outfield and slid across the tarp. Hamilton was among them. "You've got to keep the game fun," he said. "It reminds you of why you started playing as a little kid. When we were little kids we weren't allowed to do that because you'd get in trouble."

Carl Beane dies while driving

BOSTON -- Boston Red Sox public address announcer Carl Beane, the voice of Fenway Park whose booming baritone called ballplayers to the plate for two World Series champions, died on Wednesday after suffering a heart attack while driving. He was 59.

"We are filled with sadness at this tragic news," Red Sox president Larry Lucchino said in a statement issued by the team, which attributed the death to a heart attack. "His legion of friends with the Red Sox and the media will miss him enormously, and all of Red Sox Nation will remember his presence, his warmth, and his voice."

The Worcester district attorney said that Beane died in an accident after his car, an SUV with a spare tire cover stitched to look like a baseball, crossed the double yellow lines and left the road before hitting a tree and a wall. He was pronounced dead at Harrington Hospital in Southbridge a short time later, according to a release from D.A. Joseph D. Early Jr.

A longtime fixture in the Red Sox media who provided radio reports and gathered sound for broadcasters, including The Associated Press, Beane landed what he called his dream job when he won a competition for the job announcing the lineups at Fenway Park after the 2002 season. In his second season, he announced the home games of the World Series when the Red Sox won the championship to end an 86-year title drought.

"His voice was pretty unique," designated hitter David Ortiz said Wednesday before Boston's game in Kansas City. "I'm pretty sure everybody is going to remember that forever."

Added Ortiz: "It's something that's unexpected. It doesn't matter if you get to know the person or not; it always hits you. It's a tough situation where there's no tomorrow. One way or another, all of us get to be a family. You guys as a reporter, us as a player, him as an announcer -- everybody gets to be a family member here. And once things like that goes down, you hurt. You hurt. My prayers going out to his family."

With his voice familiar throughout New England to the millions of fans who filled Fenway each year, Beane also was hired to work as a master of ceremonies, narrate commercials and announce wedding parties. According to a 2008 interview with Boston Magazine, grooms would tell Beane they were more nervous to meet him and try on his World Series ring than they were when reciting their vows.

"When I get that instant response, a feeling washes over me like, 'This is where I should be,' " Beane told the magazine. "This is what I know I was put on Earth to do."

As a tribute to longtime announcer Sherm Feller, one of his predecessors, Beane used many of the same expressions, including his opening, "Ladies and gentlemen, boys and girls, welcome to Fenway Park." But Beane also considered longtime Yankees announcer Bob Sheppard a friend and mentor, and the two would share a meal together whenever Beane traveled to New York for a game.

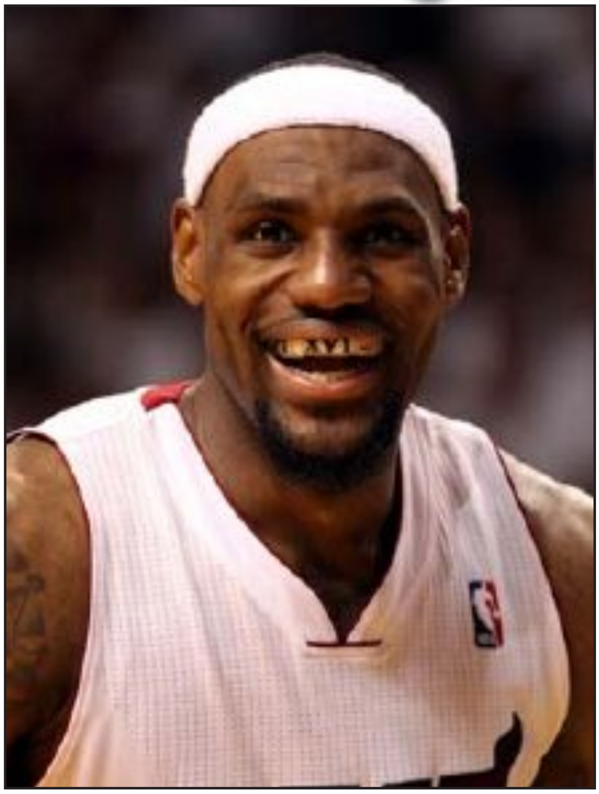

"No one loved his role with the Red Sox more than Carl did his," Lucchino said. "He adored the opportunity to pay homage each game to Sherm Feller, and to contribute to the culture of Fenway Park, a place he loved passionately."

LeBron James, Heat close out Knicks in five games

MIAMI -- The final horn sounded, and LeBron James wrapped his arms aroundCarmelo Anthony in a warm embrace.

Their head-to-head scoring matchup in this series was even, 139 points apiece.

Just about everything else tipped Miami's way -- so the Heat are moving on and the New York Knicks are going home.

James had 29 points, eight rebounds and seven assists, Chris Bosh and Dwyane Wade both scored 19 points and the Heat ousted the short-handed Knicks 106-94 in Game 5 of the Eastern Conference first-round series Wednesday night.

The Heat won the series 4-1, and will meet Indiana in the East semifinals starting Sunday in Miami.

"We do not take this for granted," Heat coach Erik Spoelstra said. "This was a tough series. We feel very good about moving on and it'll only get tougher from here."

For the Heat, it was only the first step. The reigning East champions have one goal -- getting back to the finals and winning it all -- and that was likely why even beating the franchise's longtime rival prompted, at most, a subdued celebration.

"We will savor this win tonight," James said. "And then we get to work tomorrow and get ready for Indiana."

Anthony scored 35 points for the Knicks, including a spinning jumper over James at the end of the third quarter that pulled New York within 81-67. It was far from being enough to stave off an all too familiar playoff result for Anthony, part of that 2003 draft class that also yielded James, Bosh and Wade.

Anthony has played 54 postseason games, being part of wins only 17 times. A misleading stat for certain -- it's hardly all on him -- and no shortage of people in the Heat organization interrupted their celebrating of a series-clincher to tip their caps Anthony's way afterward.

"We fought, under the circumstances," Anthony said. "I'm not one to make any excuses for anything. ... But Miami, they're a tough defensive team. They stick to what their schemes are."

James shot 48 percent from the field in the series; Anthony shot 42 percent. James averaged 6.2 rebounds and 5.6 assists; Anthony averaged 8.2 rebounds and 2.2 assists.

"It was fun, man," James said. "He's one of the most competitive players I've ever played against in a playoff series."

Amare Stoudemire scored 14 points, Landry Fields and J.R. Smith both added 12, Mike Bibby had 10 and Tyson Chandler grabbed 11 rebounds for New York, which is 1-8 in playoff games with Anthony and Stoudemire as teammates.

"Miami is a very good team," Stoudemire said. "You have to give credit to them."

Stoudemire fouled out with 4:48 left, and the Knicks put together one more run with hopes of extending the season. New York cut the margin to 11 points four times in a 2-minute span, but Miami answered every time, the last of those a 3-pointer by Shane Battier with 54 seconds left.

That sent the white seat covers flying in all corners of the arena, the fans knowing it was finally over.

"There's a lot of pride that takes place in this kind of series," Wade said. "Even though it was a five-game series, it was a very tough series to win. ... I thought it helped us. You couldn't overlook this team."

Bibby averaged 0.5 points in first-quarter appearances this season. That was before scoring eight in the opening minutes of Game 5, including a jumper over Wade that gave New York a quick 14-8 lead.

It was one of New York's few moments to enjoy. James had 13 points on only six field-goal attempts by halftime, Wade shook off a scoreless first quarter with 12 in the second, and Miami went into the break leading 55-44.

The margin was less than 10 points for only 90 seconds of the third quarter. Stoudemire went to the bench with his fifth foul with 6:41 left in the third, and Miami went on an 11-2 spurt not long after that all but sealed the outcome. It was 67-58 when Fields made two free throws with 4:49 left in the quarter -- and then the Heat's "Big Three" needed just 3 minutes to blow the game open.

Bosh and Wade combined for six points in that flurry, James the other five, including a 21-footer with 1:29 left to put Miami up 78-60.

"It was very crucial," James said. "We had an 11- or 12-point lead in Game 4 and we weren't able to bump it up to 15, 16. ... We allowed them to get back into the game. We were very conscious tonight when we got that lead."

For the Knicks, it was the 12th straight season without a playoff series victory. The last time New York advanced in the postseason came at Miami's expense in 2000 in the East semifinals.

New York's season started with great expectations. Not long after the lockout ended the Knicks acquired Chandler from Dallas, a move made possible by using the amnesty clause on Chauncey Billups.

Those moves were expected. Just about everything else that happened was not. From the firing of coach Mike D'Antoni to the emergence of Jeremy Linbefore he was sidelined by a knee injury, the Knicks had a roller-coaster ride that continued with a baffling series of injuries against Miami.

Rookie guard Iman Shumpert was lost in the third quarter of Game 1 to a torn knee ligament, Stoudemire sliced his left hand after taking out his frustrations on a metal-and-glass fire extinguisher case after a Game 2 loss, and Baron Davis shredded his knee so badly in Game 4 that he is expected to be out a year -- at least.

"I thought we played well in spurts," Knicks interim coach Mike Woodson said. "Our guys got a short taste of what playoff basketball's about. It's something this summer we've got to sit and think about and hopefully get ready for next season."

He didn't put any extra emphasis on the word "hopefully," but he could have. One of New York's first orders of business this offseason will likely be deciding if Woodson will be back on the sideline, as many expect.

"Woody's done a heck of a job with that team," Spoelstra said.
